

Lausanne/Lancaster Symposium on Methods in Linguistics
17 May 2019 – University of Lausanne

09.00 – 09.15: Welcome (Jennifer Thorburn and Adrian Leemann)

09.15 – 09.45: Chris Hart (Lancaster): Experimental methods in (critical) discourse analysis

09.45 – 10.15: Gilles Merminod (Lausanne): Methodology for a sociolinguistics of narrative

10.15 – 10.45 Jennifer Thorburn (Lausanne): Working with communities: balancing community needs and linguistic inquiry

10.45 – 11.15: Coffee break

11.15 – 11.45: Silke Brandt (Lancaster) – Implicit and explicit measures of mental-state language and false belief

11.45 – 12.15: Aris Xanthos (Lausanne) – Advances in the measurement of linguistic diversity

12.15 – 12.45: Daniel Van Olmen (Lancaster) – Large convenience versus small systematic sampling in typology: May size be all that matters?

12.45 – 14.15: Lunch break

14.15 – 14.45: Vittorio Tantucci (Lancaster) – Computational methods for intercultural pragmatics

14.45 – 15.15: George Brown (Lancaster) – What can speech technology offer?

15.15 – 15.30: Short coffee break

15.30 – 16.00: Anita Auer (Lausanne) – Collecting historical and contemporary data in heritage language communities

16.00 – 16.30: Adrian Leemann (Lancaster) – Challenges and benefits of collecting speech data through apps

16.30 – 16.45 Closing (Jennifer Thorburn and Adrian Leemann)