

Norma M. Riccucci
Professeure à l'Université Rutgers
New Jersey

| le savoir vivant |

conférence

Applying Critical Race Theory (CRT) to Public Administration Scholarship

A l'occasion de la remise du grade de Docteure en administration publique honoris causa
de l'Université de Lausanne

VENDREDI 3 JUIN À 15H00
AULA DE L'IDHEAP

ABSTRACT

This presentation explores the applicability of Critical Race Theory (CRT) to research in public administration and policy. This framework has been applied to a number of fields including health, education, criminal justice and sociology. CRT helps uncover structural and institutional racism, which create social inequities and inequalities throughout societies. Applying CRT to public administration is paramount given the high priority that the field places on social equity, the third pillar of public administration. In order to achieve social equity and justice, systematic and structural racism must be directly addressed and confronted head on. The global Black Lives Matter (BLM) movement is one example of the urgency and significance of applying theories from a variety of disciplines to the study of racism in public administration.

ABOUT NORMA M. RICCUCCI

Norma M. Riccucci is a Board of Governors Distinguished Professor at the School of Public Affairs and Administration at Rutgers University, Newark, USA. She has published extensively in the areas of diversity, representative bureaucracy, and social equity. She is the recipient of a number of awards, including the H. George Frederickson Award for Career Contributions in Public Management Research from the Public Management Research Association; the Herbert Simon Award for significant career contributions to the scientific study of bureaucracy from the Midwest Political Science Association, and the John Gaus Award for a lifetime of exemplary scholarship in the joint tradition of political science and public administration from the American Political Science Association. She is an elected fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration (NAPA).

La conférence se donne en anglais et sera suivie d'un apéritif.

INSCRIPTION

La participation est gratuite et sur inscription avant le 16 mai 2022.

www.unil.ch/fdca/Conference-Norma-Riccucci

