

Workshop

Animals in Political Decision-Making

The workshop seeks to explore the question of how animals can be adequately represented in political decision-making. In particular, the question arises of how animals can be thought to influence political decisions that affect them, but that, as of yet, are made without their consent

University of Lausanne
Switzerland

May 29th, 2024

Angela Martin

University of Basel

“Human deliberation and animal representation”

Leonie Bossert

University of Tübingen

“Overcoming speciesist biases: Using AI to foster interspecies justice”

Charlotte Blattner

University of Bern

“From constitutional animal law toward interspecies constitutionalizing”

Pablo Magaña

Nova University Lisbon

“Nonhuman animals in Rawlsian political philosophy: Conflict and accommodation”

Friderike Spang

University of Lausanne

“Representing animals: A double role for deliberation”

Will Kymlicka

Queen's University

“Three versions of animal politics: Politics on behalf of animals; politics by animals; politics with animals”

Registration

To register, please send a message simply with the subject “Registration Workshop May 2024” to Friderike.spang@unil.ch, until April 2nd, 2024

contact : Friderike.spang@unil.ch